

Claude Code Brief — M.P. Radio Launch Readiness

Sept 27, 2026 · Read alongside 3-MP-Radio-Master.pdf and 4-Everything-Else-Master.pdf. Goal: make mpradio.fm genuinely ready for the owner to phone any entertainer and have them sign up excited — by building the things an entertainer actually sees and touches, first.

1. The principle that decides every priority

An entertainer deciding whether to pay $10-25/month sees the homepage, their profile page, the checkout, the Listen Live button, the arcade, the TV panel, and the listener count. They never see the Live365 tier, listener-hour caps, storage, or add-ons. Build and spend in that order: front-of-house first, platform capacity when real numbers demand it.

2. The readiness gate — five things that must be true before outreach

#	Must be true	Who builds it
1	The homepage is live on the real domain — the built page, not the design canvas	Claude Code (this brief)
2	The $10 / $20 / $25 tiers are actually purchasable — Shopify draft products made live, checkout tested end-to-end with a real card	Claude Code + owner
3	One fully filled-in example entertainer profile (photo, bio, genre tags, Buy Dubs, "Live Tuesdays 8pm") an entertainer can picture as their own	Owner content, Claude Code template
4	Listen Live works from the site — the Live365 stream plays, even if it's the owner on rotation	Claude Code embed + owner
5	At least one show on the schedule so the station never looks empty	Owner

Items 1 and 2 are the only real builds. Items 3-5 are content and configuration. When all five are true, outreach starts.

3. Build the homepage to this spec (visual target: the Design canvas already made)

- Brand identity — the most important correction: M.P. Radio is a multi-genre entertainer platform for Musicians, Bands, Comedians, Podcasters, Dancers, Songwriters, and DJs across ALL genres. It is NOT a reggae station and dubplates are NOT the main feature. Rock-a-Way's reggae/dancehall heritage can be honoured on the site but must not define the homepage. Genre tags on sample cards must show a mix.
- Visual quality: no "PHOTO" placeholder circles, no "COVER ART" placeholder text. Real photography or properly styled illustrated avatars. Real depth — gradients, shadows, layering. A considered type hierarchy. It must read as a funded, professional platform, not a wireframe.
- Animation: entrance animations as sections scroll in; hover/motion on cards and buttons; the page must feel alive from the first second.
- Required on the homepage, not optional: a visible entry point into the Arcade (Pool, Snooker, Darts, Pinball, Sling Smash, Turbo Karts) and a visible entry point into the TV/video component (the CP24-style panel that becomes MPTV).

- Content: hero with broad multi-genre framing; "Get on the air — get heard, get booked, sell your music" with Musicians · Bands · Comedians · Podcasters at $10/mo (+15% booking commission); DJ tier $20/mo; Extra tier $25/mo, shown separately; featured entertainers with a genre mix; "Three ways to join" (Entertainer / DJ / Manager-Label) as equal cards; the $5 direct-referral reward and livestreaming-as-income called out; Book This DJ / Buy Dubs as secondary actions, not the page's focus. The Mr. Personality hero character and the launch countdown are on the Design canvas — carry them through.
- Colours: Navy #041E42, Green #4CAF50, White. No black+gold outside the Penthouse tier. The real M.P. Radio animated speaker logo replaces the placeholder mark in the header once the file is supplied.

4. Make the website the app — build it as a Progressive Web App

Entertainers want to tell friends "download our app" — a real credibility line. But Live365's $49/month app add-on is a branded stream player: it plays the station and nothing else — no profiles, no arcade, no TV, no store. Sending a friend there shows them the least impressive version of the platform. The website, built as a PWA, installs to the phone's home screen with the M.P. Radio icon, opens full-screen without a browser bar, and carries everything. To the friend, that IS the app. To the owner, it's no monthly fee and no wait on Apple.

- Web app manifest: name "M.P. Radio", short_name "M.P. Radio", display standalone, theme colour #041E42, background #041E42, icons at 192 and 512 (from the real logo once supplied), start_url the homepage
- Service worker: cache the app shell (homepage, CSS/JS, logo, arcade hub) for instant open; never cache the live audio stream
- An "Add M.P. Radio to your home screen" prompt on first visit from a phone, plus a short how-to for iPhone (Share → Add to Home Screen)
- Verify on both a real Android phone and a real iPhone that the icon appears and the site opens full-screen
- The Live365 branded app is deferred: revisit once there's a proven listening audience, or once the station is on a tier that bundles mobile apps (Broadcast 3)

5. Platform and spend decisions (owner-confirmed logic)

- Stay on Live365 Broadcast 1 (~$81 CAD/mo; ~50 concurrent listeners, 1,500 listening hours) for launch. A new station won't hit that ceiling in month one; hitting it is the trigger to upgrade, and at that point the DJs paying $20 cover it.
- Add TuneIn distribution (\$60 USD/mo) at launch — the one add-on that brings outside listeners who've never heard of the station. Broadcast 1 + TuneIn $\approx$ \$119 USD $\approx$ \$163 CAD, versus \$390 for the top tier + everything.
- The first listeners come from the entertainers' own followings — ten acts with 50 followers each is 500 potential listeners on day one. The profile page and its shareable link matter more than any tier.
- The listener count shown on the site is the most motivating thing an entertainer sees. Make it real and prominent; it only grows through promotion and each act cross-posting "I'm live on M.P. Radio tonight."
- Refero is being cut (not in use). Higgsfield waits for Wealthsimple funds. Blockade Labs is paused/downgraded until a shoot is scheduled.

6. Open item to define BEFORE building beyond the homepage

No person-to-person interaction feature exists yet anywhere in the plan — no live chat during a broadcast, no comments on profiles, no shoutout/request mechanic, no fan-to-fan messaging. This is a real gap in the concept, not a build oversight. Get the owner's decision on which of these ship first (recommended: live chat alongside the broadcast) and treat it as a first-class feature, not an add-on.

7. Handoff rules

- Prices and tier names come from 3-MP-Radio-Master.pdf. Do not invent numbers.

- Do not re-suggest GrooveSell or the old Shopify Buy Button. Checkout is Shopify; the tour is 3DVista; the homepage is a fast, SEO-friendly page linking into both.
- Never market anything as "AI-powered" in copy — describe what it does.
- Show the owner the real page on a phone before calling anything done. Verify, then claim.
